

National Federation of ALMOs

championing better homes and communities

23 October 2020

We're delighted to announce the inclusion of the NFA's Policy Director, Chloe Fletcher, in this year's Women in Housing: Leaders 2020 list, published today in Inside Housing.

"She's professional, she's knowledgeable and she gets things done," was the judging panel's verdict.

NFA MD Eamon McGoldrick said: "We are very proud that Chloe's place in this year's list gives her the recognition she deserves. She is the driving force behind the NFA's work, influencing, lobbying and campaigning to make sure our members' views are put before Government and influence policy."

Chloe Fletcher, policy director, National Federation of ALMOs

Those who have most influence over social housing policymakers are often those who hail from large membership organisations. Chloe is an exception to the rule. The National Federation of ALMOs is small but widely seen as punching significantly above its weight – in no small part because of its policy director.

Chloe is a trusted expert on issues such as employment, building safety, building management, homelessness, governance and Universal Credit, and is consulted regularly by civil servants from many government departments, including the Treasury.

"The sector's residents, organisations and allies could not wish for a more effective ally," the person who nominated her told us.

Our judges agreed. One said: "She's professional, she's knowledgeable and she gets things done."
